

Retirement... Recreation...

 ations of the social security program that no civil servants may benefit from it if there is a State retirement program which they can join.
 Even where no such retirement program exists, Stevens said, it is highly questionable whether a federal social security program could be introduced for city employees. There is no case on record where this has been done.

 He declared further that he feels that he has the answers to some of Torrance's recreational ills because he has watched this area for some time. He wants to investigate the scene a bit more to see how right his ideas are before going into the matter at greater length.
 He feels convinced he can give Torrance a good recreational program. In the past he has always met with success at his other endeavors, even though he sometimes had to struggle a long time to have his principles accepted. In the long run they always were accepted and he had been proved right.
 For the last six years he has been acting district manager for the Eastern Section of the Los Angeles County Parks and Recreation Department. Prior to this he spent four years with the Long Beach Recreational Department.
 Managing the East Los Angeles program was a most difficult task, Van Bellehem stated, but one which proved successful. Recreation was no luxury there but a necessity since the children could not afford other entertainment. It required a lot of imagination, therefore, to set up an attractive program.
 The director has just returned from a three-week vacation with his family. He has two daughters, Linda, 17, a senior at Torrance High School, and Judy, 10, a fifth grader at North Torrance Elementary.

The new director replaces Frank Carpenter who was informed by the City Council recently that he would not be rehired as of Aug. 1.

It happened in the perfume department of a large store. A young lady with a baby in her arms stepped up to the counter and carefully surveyed the display which included "My Sin," "Tabu," "Ecstasy," "Irresistible," and "Surrender." Quietly she asked the salesgirl: "Would you care to have a testimonial?" — From the Torranian.
